Mission

Assisting homeless, low-income, and other disadvantaged individuals in their efforts to become self-sufficient through quality employment.

History

In 1988, the Andre House created St. Joseph the Worker (SJW) in response to a humble plea from homeless individuals receiving dinner in the park: "We want jobs, but we don't have the tools." Since then, SJW has focused solely on empowering men and women who are truly "down and out" to transform their lives through employment. SJW is a non-profit organization that is 100% privately funded.

Despite the odds, we witness success every day.

Josh came to SJW for a fresh start. He has since gained long-term employment in the plumbing & pipefitting trade. This is his story.

"I just wanted to take a moment to thank everyone at St. Joseph the Worker. I'm not from Arizona. I don't have any support here. I found a great job here doing pipefitting, but I started worrying because I didn't have money for work clothes, tools, or transportation to work. I started thinking I was going to have to tell the company I couldn't take the job. Then somebody told me about SJW. With their help I was able to have work clothes, tools, and transportation. This program has helped me get my life back on track and it has helped me feed my kids and wife by providing me with the essentials needed to maintain gainful employment. Once again, thank you. I couldn't have done it without your help."

St. Joseph the Worker distributed 8,877 public transit passes this past fiscal year.
